Books for Families Doing Time Together

By Amy Zimmerman | Second Edition

I wrote these books during my own incarceration at Coffee Creek, for kids with a parent or grandparent behind bars, and for the grown-ups holding the family together. Love doesn't stop at a prison gate. All three are now in Second Edition paperbacks ($10 on Amazon, also on Kindle).

When Nana is at Camp A.k.a Prison

My first book, written from inside Coffee Creek — a story for kids with a grandma who's away, and for the grown-ups who love them.

Mamaw and Aria are So Brave and Smart

When Momma Amy is away, little Aria is brave and smart — and Mamaw is right there with love, music, and open arms. For every child growing up with a parent behind bars, and every grandparent helping hold the family together.

Visiting Mommy

When Mommy is away, there are still so many ways to stay close — video visits, letters, phone calls, pictures, and the special joy of visiting day. Every page doubles as a coloring page, so little ones can make the story their own.
